

"Old Mechanical, 1888" is one of Vanderbilt University's original buildings and served as the School of Engineering for many years.

Since 1982 it has been home to Executive Programs for the Owen Graduate School of Management.

In a 2008 renovation, an original pine support beam, hidden for years, was removed to open up the executive classroom ceiling so that the historic lines of Old Mechanical could be seen.

The 1888 Heart Pine beam will live on forever as beautiful handmade items for friends of Vanderbilt like you.
